

Jean-Charles ROCHET is a former student of Ecole Normale Supérieure (Paris) and holds a Ph.D. in Mathematical Economics from Paris – Dauphine University. His dissertation won the Arconati-Visconti award. He has taught in Paris, France (ENSAE, Ecole Polytechnique and Toulouse School of Economics), London (B.P. visiting professor, London School of Economics, 2001-02) and has visited many universities and central banks all over the world. He is currently President of the Econometric Society and has been a Fellow of this Society since 1995. He has also been council member of European Economic Association, and associate editor of Econometrica. He is currently SFI Professor of Banking at Zürich University and term professor in the Toulouse School of Economics. He has published more than 80 articles in international scientific journals and 5 books, including “Microeconomics of Banking” (with X. FREIXAS) MIT Press, and “Why are there so Many banking Crises?”, Princeton UP. His research interests include financial stability, payments economics, and industrial organization of financial markets, as well as contract theory.