

Steven Ongena is a professor in empirical banking in the Department of Finance, the European Banking Center, and the Tilburg Law and Economics Center at CentER-Tilburg University. He is a research fellow in financial economics of CEPR.

He has published more than 30 papers in refereed academic journals, including in the American Economic Review, Journal of Finance, Journal of Financial Economics, Review of Finance, Journal of International Economics, and Journal of Financial Intermediation, among other journals, and he has published more than 40 papers in other collections.

He is currently a co-editor of the Review of Finance; and he serves as an associate editor for a number of other journals.

He co-authored, with Hans Degryse and Moshe Kim, the graduate textbook «Microeconometrics of Banking: Methods, Applications and Results» published by Oxford University Press, which he has taught at the Barcelona Graduate School of Economics, the Bundesbank, the Kiel Institute for the World Economy, Norges Bank, Shandong University and the Universities of Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Mannheim and St. Gallen, among other institutions.

He is a director of the European Finance Association and of the Financial Intermediation Research Society, a board member of the European Banking Center, and an advisory board member of FINEST. He is a frequent visitor to central banks in the Eurosystem. In 2012 he received a Fordham-RPI-NYU Stern Rising Star in Finance Award.